SUBJECT SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT: Transition to Virtual Operations (Jan. 23)

The National Weather Service has issued a winter weather warning for much of Arkansas, including the Pine Bluff area. Due to anticipated hazardous road conditions and potential power outages, the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff will transition to virtual business operations and academic instruction on Friday, January 23, 2026.

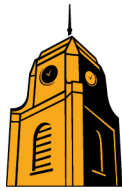

Guidance for Residential Students

We understand that many students may choose to travel home before the weather worsens.

- Travel Safety: If you plan to leave campus, please do so before Friday afternoon, prior to the onset of the storm.
- Staying on Campus: If you intend to remain in your residence hall during the winter storm, please notify your Residence Hall Coordinator as soon as possible for safety and staffing purposes.

Academic & Business Operations

- Instruction: Faculty and students will conduct Friday classes via virtual modalities. Please contact your professors for further information regarding coursework.
- Operations: Campus business operations will occur remotely on Friday. Please coordinate with your supervisor for specific guidance regarding your department or coursework.
- Critical Personnel: Employees designated as critical personnel, including Campus Police, Technical Services, Facilities Management, and Dining Services, should report to their supervisors for further instructions.

Campus Services & Safety

- Student Residents: Residence halls remain open. Deicer is being applied to walkways near housing and dining facilities; however, please exercise extreme caution when moving about campus.
- Dining Services: Dining hours have been modified for the safety of students and staff. Please visit uapb.mydininghub.com/en for the most current schedule.

Travel & Attendance

While campus safety is our highest priority, we cannot assess local road conditions.

- Employees: If the University resumes in-person operations but you are unable to report to work safely, you must notify your direct supervisor.
- Commuting Students: Please use sound judgment regarding travel. If you determine it is unsafe to commute, you are responsible for promptly contacting your instructors to discuss missed coursework or requirements.
